Idea, theme and objectives

YEU Estonia is looking for participants for a training course called “Europe in crisis: a call for dialogue. What can youth workers contribute?”. The main goal is to equip youth workers with competences to promote intercultural and interreligious dialogue in local and international activities, particularly focused on the European Refugee Crisis.

More than a million migrants and refugees crossed into Europe in 2015, as a result of the ongoing wars in the Middle East. Most of them were Syrian, followed by Afghans and Iraqis. They arrived and are still arriving in a moment of time where many citizens in European countries feel threatened by foreigners. In about every European country there is a heavy debate ongoing, on how to deal with the situation.

Populist political parties profit from these sentiments, using simple slogans like 'no more foreigners'. At the same time, it would not be correct to call all people who are critical towards the recent immigration wave 'bigots' or 'racists'. Then we would basically shut down the discussion. Furthermore, we see that the debates of today are very much based on stereotypes and prejudices. With this project we call for a dialogue, to share opinions from all sides to develop better informed opinions. We also believe that knowledge is the key to understanding and compassion.

This training course is organized for representatives of youth organizations from different European countries, to create a common strategy. As the crisis is a cross-border problem, it only makes sense to coordinate our actions in a European framework. After the training, the participating youth workers will be able to promote intercultural and interreligious dialogue in local and international activities.

The project aims to equip youth workers with competences to promote intercultural and interreligious dialogue in local and international activities, particularly focused on the European Refugee Crisis.

Objectives:

- to exchange knowledge between representatives from different European youth organizations about the European Refugee Crisis: its origins and how way countries deal with it, including the public response;
- to get a thorough understanding of concepts such as stereotypes, prejudices and discrimination;
- to promote intercultural, interreligious dialogue and respect for human rights;
- to develop detailed, realistic plans to promote intercultural and interreligious dialogue in local and international projects;
- to promote the Erasmus Plus programme.

Three professional trainers will guide the learning process. The methodology is based on non-formal education, with energizers, brainstorms, group work, discussions etc.

Accommodation and finances

The training will take place in recreation center 'Oxforell', close to the city of Kose-Uuemõisa in Estonia.

It is easily reachable by a one-hour bus ride from Tallinn airport. It is situated in a nice environment and it has excellent facilities. Check out their website: <http://oxforell.ee>. The participants will be accommodated in 3 / 4 person bedrooms.

About the organizer

The project is co-organized by YEU Estonia and Jongeren voor Uitwisseling en Begrip (JUB), from the Netherlands.

YEU Estonia is a non-governmental youth organization, founded in 1997. The organization aims to help Estonian youth to participate in different international youth seminars and conventions, to get more experience on international level. We hope to contribute to a society where youngsters play an active role, in a spirit of respect for Human Rights.

JUB is a youth organization, aiming to bring people from different cultures together, in order to learn from each other. JUB works with topics like human rights, intercultural learning and democracy. In short, JUB works against discrimination and it promotes diversity. It aims to realize local and international youth activities, to promote tolerance between young people from different cultures and countries.
